We copy to-day, on our outside, an article from Prentice's Louisville Journet, the same paper which denounced President Lincoln's proclamation of April, 1861, calling out 75,000 men, as mad and wicked. The Journel is the men, as mad and wicked. The Journal is the commence.

THE OPERATIONS IN LOUISIANA.

A correspondent of the New York Times give interesting details of recent operations in Louis lana. Talbodeanx, from which he writes, is forty-ix faller. Casionase railroad from Algiers opposite New Orleans. By seamboat is is reached by going up the Mississippi eighty-miles from New Orleans to Donaldsonville, and then thirty miles up the Lafourche river, upon is situated. Gen. Weitzel. with his principal force, took the steamboa route. Col. Stafford, with his black regiment, 800 strong, took the railroad. For the first thirty-six miles out of Algiers it is swamp and wet prairies. Then comes ten miles of magnifi-cent sugar plantations. The Times's correspondent says:

"In all this country for sailes is now to be seen ready for the sickle, or rather the knife, the most splendid crop of sugar came that was ever seen in the world. Nothing like the size or height was before ever known, and it is calculated that had there been no war, and the pianters had been left to quietly pursue their avocation, their income this year would have been uniprocedented in the history of the crop. But now, alsa! all is to be wasted; for miles the ripening came is to be seen, growing richer and richer by every full breeze, but Tipening still, only to be wasted and lost. The appearance of our troops has ended all work among the negroes, and sent a majority of the planters fleering from us with undisquised feat. A few remain and welcome our presence, but their laour troops has ended all work among the negroes, and sent a majority of the planters fleeing from us with undesguised fear. A few remain and welcome our presence, but their laborers, unfortunately, are demoralized by the surrounding example, and they suffer with the rest. And the effect is the appearance of the soldiers of the First regiment of the Gardes de Afrique, who have made a conjunction with Gen. Weitzel, having passed up the railroad instead of the river. The black troops, so far, have behaved with admirable moderation and with all needed courage, and although they have not been in action, they have courted danger, and done their duty well. It is passing strange to see these men on the Lafourche, standing sentinel upon some hedge, when the once wealthy and still proud planter passes with his splendid squipage. The negro soldier bids the traveller "flait," examines his pass, and bids him return or proceed, as the case may be; it is a strange and wonderful revolution, scarcely to be comprehended by the sight or understood by the resaon.

In the vicinity of Thibodeaux is situated the plantation of Maj. Gen, Braxton Bragg. It of course attracted the attention of our soldiers, and his negroes seemed to have a very intelligent idea of the relation their master stood to the National troops. As our soldiers advanced, ident, Col. Warner, of the Thirteenth Connecticut, received a word from Mrs. Bragg that she would like to have a guard to protect her property. Men who were rich wake up to the disagreeable fact that their wealth has departed. All the houses have been ransacked by the negroes, who have taken what they wanted. Across the bayon opposite our camp there is a most remarkable and picturesque assemblage of over three thousand negroes of all sizes and ages and tints; there they are holding high carnival; having seized their master's carts, private our riages, horses, miles, &c., with plenty of sheep, poultry, and bread, they are enjoying their freedom for the first time, with a vengeance.

It is one of the quaintest and most laughable sights in the world to see the big negroes loiling back in the carriages or diving along the road, driven by one of their own color. They did not in any numbers until since the fight. I suppose the victory was a conclusive argument to their minds."

Who are the Resels.—The N. Y. Express took us to task the other day for a lack of intelligence, in not knowing that the rebellion is the work of the non-slaveholders of the South, against the advice and remonstrances of the

These novelties will be gotten up we understand, in an exceedingly costly man mer and with a splendor to which the Wash-ington stage has hitherto been a stranger. The scenery will be entirely new and in the most ambitious style of Mr. Charles S. Getz, the best scenic artist in the Union. Gnoven's.-The production of "Mlami" this deservedly favorite resort of amusement on Wednesday evening was a great success. The piece was loudly applauded. In the double part of "The Wild Huntress" and "Madame St. Aubert," Miss Western fully equalled her best previous efforts. Her acting in the scene in which she vainly struggles to elicit some evideare of conjugal affection from her paie-face husband, and in which, when his faithlesaness is manifested beyond a doubt, rising in a tem-pest of terrific passion she brings up her huni-ing piece and shoots him dead on the spot, was as fine a specimen of delicate, graceful, and in turn, intense and lofty delineation. As Madame Vine, on Thursday evening, she was almost without a fault. The closing scene was charac terized by a deep delicate pathos, an intense tenderness of emotion and passion, both in con-ception and execution, which left nothing to
